All About Jazz Partners with EvieSays.com to Increase Calendar Content

NASHVILLE – All About Jazz has partnered with EvieSays.com, a leading event and entertainment listing company, to vastly increase the number of events actively listed at All About Jazz. "More event listings means a more comprehensive calendar," says Michael Ricci, founder and publisher of All About Jazz. "Our goal is to promote live jazz events and distribute that information to our readers at the local level. The EvieSays partnership gives our calendar a real shot in the arm... the more comprehensive our calendar, the more valuable it becomes to jazz fans."

Bruce Dobie, president of EvieSays.com, says the partnership is a win-win for both companies. "By partnering with All About Jazz, we're increasing the content available at the All About Jazz site and we're getting the word out about our site as well," Dobie says. "Striking partnerships like this is important as we begin distributing our content across multiple platforms." For an example of an EvieSays powered listing, see our Terence Blanchard at the Kimmel Center detail page.

If you're a musician, please create a profile page, then submit your calendar dates to All About Jazz. You can use AAJ's free calendar widget to broadcast your performance dates back to your website and to your MySpace page. Venue and festival reps can submit dates directory from their listing pages.

EvieSays (Event Information Everywhere) is a search engine for event and entertainment listings. Its database includes tens of thousands of listings from across the United States and beyond. Eviesays partners with media organizations to leverage their listings in print and on the web.

The EvieSays calendar solution provides newspapers, TV and Radio stations a way to increase traffic to their websites, export their listings to their print editions, and compete with other event aggregators on an equal technological footing.

All About Jazz is the largest and top-rated jazz music destination website on the Internet, and a 7-time winner of the prestigious JJA Jazz Award. Based in Philadelphia, PA, AAJ has established a first-rate reputation among jazz aficionados for providing clear, in-depth content and information.
